THE NEW SILVER BILL.

The Omaha Bee thinks "the prospect for silver legislation at the present session of Congress appears favorable. Several measures have already been presented for public discussion, the latest the silver bill framed by the Senate Finance Committee, to which reference was made several days ago. The introduction of this measure may be taken as a declaration on the part of the Senate Committee that it is unfavorable to the plan of the Secretary of the Treasury, and in this view it is to be assumed as probable that the Windom silver bill will not again receive serious consideration in the Senate, even though it should be favorably regarded in the House. Secretary Windom appeared before a committee of the House a few days ago and explained and advocated his plan, but the prospect for it can not be regarded as at all hopeful in view of the attitude of the Senate Finance Committee. The Windom scheme may doubtless, therefore, be safely dismissed from further consideration as not likely to be accepted in either branch of Congress.

The Senate silver bill provides that the Secretary of the Treasury shall purchase silver bullion to the amount of four and one-half million dollars' worth each month and gold bullion to an unlimited amount, paying therefore Treasury notes. These notes are to be redeemable on demand in lawful money of the United States, and when so redeemed shall be cancelled. They are made receivable for customs, taxes and all public dues, and when so received may be reissued. National banks may count them as a part of their lawful reserve. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to coin so much of the gold and silver bullion purchased under the act as shall be necessary to provide for the redemption of the notes, the gain or seigniorage from such coinage to be paid into the Treasury. The bill provides for the repeal of the coinage act of 1878.

This is in some respects a more conservative scheme than that of Mr. Windom, and was intended as a compromise between his plan and the views of the free coinage advocates. It is reported to be acceptable to the latter, although it provides that the Treasury shall have the benefit of the profit arising from coining the bullion, which in case of free coinage would be a very considerable amount to the advantage of the silver producers. The advocates of free coinage, however, must have become convinced that they cannot carry their policy, and they cannot reasonably ask anything more favorable as a compromise than the bill proposed by the Senate Committee. Under that more than double the amount of silver annually would be represented in the currency than has been employed under the existing law, and allowing for the probable increase in production from the stimulus of an enlarged demand, the Government purchases of silver to the amount of fifty-four million dollars' worth annually would leave only a very small surplus of the American product. This should certainly be sufficient to satisfy the most extreme silver men. The addition to the currency annually under this bill, so far as silver is concerned, would be about thirty million dollars, which ought to be enough to provide for the increasing demands of the country. The only object in providing for the coinage of any part of the bullion purchased is probably to avoid the objection made to the Windom bill that it would degrade silver to the position of a mere commodity. The Senate bill also gives no discretion to the Secretary of the Treasury in the matter of purchasing bullion. As a compromise measure the bill ought to encounter very little opposition from the friends of silver, but it will be vigorously opposed by those who are hostile to any increase of the use of silver in the currency. This opposition, however, is certain to prove futile if the silver advocates can be united. Washington advices indicate that the new bill has been very well received."

A syndicate of Yankee capitalists, headed by Ben Butler, propose to purchase land at Port Said and Alexandria, and build two hundred miles of railroad through Palestine, making way stations of Hebron, Bethlehem, Jerusalem, Jericho, Nazareth and Galilee, with Damascus as the eastern terminal. The construction and operation of a railroad in that region would give a tremendous impetus to pilgrimages and swell the hosts of sightseers to enormous proportions. The stimulus of a railroad would produce almost a miraculous revival in the development of Arab's best. Imagine what a shock it would be to the pious to read that a syndicate of capitalists were booming lots in Bethlehem, or preaching the praises of Galilee as a winter resort, or hear the last brakeman ring the changes on "Jerusalem, twenty minutes for refreshments."

The march of electricity into all the departments of human activity has been the theme of countless pens, yet it remained for Chicago to prove its use in forbidden vocations. Instead of the sandbag the garrotes of the fair city have adopted electricity, and in one instance successfully used it in stunning and robbing a victim. Experiments show that a storage battery as large as a cigar case will knock a man cold and leave no mark on the victim. It is silent and effective and one of the most dangerous weapons yet placed in the hands of the criminal classes.

Pierce's Admiration for Blair.

Senator Blair has been about the Senate consulting with the new members of that body in order to ascertain what amount of opposition he may expect when his educational bill comes to a vote. He finds that all of the new Senators will support the measure, but they give different reasons for doing so. For example, Senator Pierce said: "Of course, Mr. Blair, I will vote for your bill. I will vote for it purely out of admiration for you. I would vote for any bill that a Senator would stand up here for nine days to advocate without a single listener either in the galleries or on the floor and did not get mad but twice because the people would not stay and listen to him. A man who has that much patience deserves to have his bill passed and will get my vote."

Ice Gorged Near Kansas City.

It is reported that one of the worst ice gorges that has formed in the Missouri river for many years is now located sixteen miles above Kansas City. The water is backed up almost twenty feet behind the gorge and fears are expressed of a flood when the ice goes out unless the immense volume of confined water can be drawn off gradually. The Van Aiken land reclamation company and the Winner bridge company, both of which have works under way in the river, stand in the greatest peril. They will attempt to open up a channel through the gorge by the use of dynamite.

A New Line to Frisco.

It is reported that President Hill of the Great Northern proposes to run a line from Anaconda, Mont., direct to San Francisco. Surveyors for the Great Northern are reported to have made a discovery which will revolutionize railway travel in the northwest. The discovery consists of a break in the Rocky mountains near Mary's Fork, which thus opens the way into a rich and fertile country through which the road will penetrate.

The new States have all been nicknamed but the character of the nomenclature is more suggestive than elegant. According to supposed authority North Dakota is the Flicker Tail State; South Dakota, Swing Cat; Washington, Chinook; Montana, the Stubbled Toe State.

The publishers of Stanley's book announce the title of his work to be "Darkest Africa; The Quest, Rescue and Retreat of Emin." Charles Scribner's Sons, of New York, have secured orders for 50,000 copies.

Master Abraham Lincoln died at London yesterday morning. Queen Victoria sent a message of sympathy to Minister Lincoln.

A Democratic Ballot Box.

A Washington correspondent of the Omaha Bee writes:

A unique and picturesque contrivance was on exhibition in the room of the House committee on election day. It is an Arkansas ballot box, being a sample of twenty-one boxes actually used in one of the counties of the First District in that State and filed here as an exhibit in the contested case of Featherstone against Cate. It is a strictly Democratic ballot box made so by a little sleight of hand assisted by a simple attachment which can be placed in an instant upon the opening in which the tickets are deposited. The box is of heavy tin, about the usual size, the top which is on hinges, being semi-cylindrical in form. At the apex is a slot surrounded by a receptacle half an inch high, like a miniature chimney. Over this is slipped, when it is desired to put the box in working order, a small form which makes two slots, one leading directly into the box and the other down the outside of the chimney. When a Democratic ticket, a fact which is determined by the identity of the voter, is handed to the conductor of the concern, he slips it down the "chimney" into the box where it belongs. When a negro hands up a ticket it is put into the false slot, slips down the outside of the box into the receiving hand of the man running the machine and not one in a thousand could tell from his position in front of the box that his ticket had not gone inside. It is exceedingly simple and ingenious and the man who invented it had a "great head" for political machinery.

Nevada War Claims.

The Silver State says:

A Washington dispatch says Congressman Clunie, of California, has introduced a bill which provides for the payment to the States of California, Nevada and Oregon war claims. The bill appropriates $4,720,891 for California, $402,906 for Nevada, and $367,271 for Oregon.

These claims are for money advanced in organizing and equipping troops during the war of the rebellion. Bills providing for their payment have heretofore been introduced in Congress and referred to the War Department. It was reported last December that the Department had reported favorably on the claim of Nevada, but inquiry at Washington disclosed the fact that though a report had been made it was not favorable.

Clunie's bill will of course receive the hearty support of every Pacific Coast member, and its passage would be a God-send to Nevada at this particular time when the State owes over half a million dollars, and its taxable property is materially reduced by the depression in the three great industries of the State. Mining has been virtually suspended by the low price of silver resulting from its demonetization, farming actually killed, except in a few favored localities, by the prolonged drought, and the live-stock business has been crippled by a winter of unprecedented severity.

A Painful Reminiscence.

That portion of Mr. Cleveland's speech on Washington which relates to virtue and morality, will cause a good many people to think of his celebrated letter to Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

FEATHERSTONE SEATED.

MRS. TERRY'S CASE CONTINUED BECAUSE OF A DRUNKEN JUROR.

Telegraphic News from all Sections of the Whole World.

One More Republican Congressman.

Special to the JOURNAL.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Outhwaite offered as a substitute for the first resolution reported by the majority (declaring Cate not entitled to his seat) a resolution declaring Featherstone not entitled to it. It was rejected, yeas 138, nays 144. Hill, of Illinois, voting with the Democrats. Springer's motion to recommit the case to the Committee on Elections with instructions to the committee to appoint a subcommittee to proceed to Arkansas to investigate the election in the first district of that State was defeated. Yeas 138, nays 146. During the roll call a great deal of confusion existed and the Speaker ordered the members to take their seats. Crisp, who was standing in one of the aisles, objected to being pointed out. The Speaker denied he had pointed out the gentleman and a heated argument between the Speaker and Crisp followed. The vote declaring Cate not elected stood yeas 147, nays 138, and Featherstone was seated by a vote of yeas 145, nays 135. The oath of office was administered to him by the Speaker, and the House adjourned.

The Nagle Case.

Special to the JOURNAL.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The argument before the U. S. Supreme Court in the Nagle habeas corpus case was concluded to-day. Choate continued his argument on the line laid down by him yesterday, that of the supremacy of the United States to the States. He maintained that when the Constitution vested judicial power in the Courts and to carry this into effect enacted laws to divide the country into circuits, it necessarily implied that in the discharge of the duties so imposed upon them, officers of the Courts should be absolutely protected by the Government, whose servants they are.

The case was closed by Attorney General Johnson, of California, in behalf of the State. He conceded Congress might pass a law for the protection of Judges while traveling to or from their circuits, but maintained no such law had been passed giving this protection either in words or by implication and that its passage absolutely was essential in order to oust the police power of the States.

Whisky Ruins a Priest.

PHILADELPHIA, March 3.—An investigation into the mysterious death of Rev. Peter H. Feron, mentioned in these dispatches yesterday, discloses the fact that he had been an outcast from the church for a number of years, intemperance being the cause of his downfall. He came to this city three or four years ago and visited a dozen physicians in an effort to obtain more medicine. It is understood he finally found one who gave him a hypodermic injection to relieve his horrors. After this he drank heavily and subsequently fell in the street where he was found by the police and taken to a hotel. From there he was removed to the hospital. Feron comes of a good English family.

Mrs. Terry's Case.

Special to the JOURNAL.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 5.—The trial of Mrs. Terry was resumed in the United States District Court this morning. Joseph D. Redding testified regarding the scene in the Circuit Court in September, 1888, when Marshal Franks was ordered to remove Mrs. Terry for creating a disturbance. The witness said Mrs. Terry violently resisted the Marshal.

C. S. Simpson, a juror in the case of Mrs. D. S. Terry, came into the United States District Court room this afternoon at the conclusion of the noon recess in a state of intoxication, and Judge Ross accordingly adjourned the trial till to-morrow morning.

In the Senate.

Special to the JOURNAL.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The bill increasing the pension of the widow of General Warren was taken up. No quorum voting on the question of passage, there was a call of the Senate when 35 Senators (less than a quorum) answered. Thereupon the Sergeant-at-Arms was sent to request the attendance of absent Senators.

On their arrival the educational bill came before the Senate as unfinished business and the Warren pension bill remained on the calendar. Barbour addressed the Senate in advocacy of the educational bill and Plumb made an address in opposition to the bill. The Senate then adjourned.

Mining Suit.

Special to the JOURNAL.

NEVADA, Cal., March 5.—The Idaho Mining Company, of Grass Valley, to-day began suit in the Superior Court against the South Yuba Water and Mining Company, to recover $5,000 damages for failure of defendant to furnish water during the big snow storms this winter to keep the machinery of the Idaho mine in operation. Plaintiff claims that proper effort was not made by the water company to keep the ditches from being blocked by the snow.

WASHINGTON COAL FIELDS.

A Proposed Road That Will Open Up Interests in Central Washington.

NORTH YAKIMA, Feb. 22, 1890.—The residents of this young city recently raised a bonus of $100,000 to encourage the building of a railroad to connect Central Washington with Portland and San Francisco. It is expected the road will pass through the lately discovered coal-fields, lying southwest of here and between here and Portland, and that, after crossing the Northern Pacific at North Yakima, it will extend northward through the Big Bend country to Spokane Falls and British Columbia. It is thought here that the owners of the Southern Pacific system may yet take a hand in the extension of this line, as it will afford connection with the best part of the State of Washington.

Another Democratic Treasurer Gone Wrong.

Special to the JOURNAL.

ST. LOUIS, March 5.—At Jefferson City it is now considered a settled fact that State Treasurer Nolan is short over $30,000. It is stated that his bondsmen have decided that the deficit must be met and the matter hushed up, but Governor Francis demurred to this proposition on the ground that such action would be unlawful. Hence the exposure.

SALT LAKE, March 5.—The Utah Legislature to-day killed the Australian ballot bill.

A Washington dispatch says it is entirely probable that the exposition will be postponed until 1893. The Chicago representatives will not suggest the postponement nor will they object to it. They will leave the question to be decided by the Senate and the House of Representatives, and will abstain from discussion of the subject or attempting to influence the decision in any way. If Congress decides to have the Fair in 1892, they will say that the people of Chicago will do their best to make a success of it that it will be a credit to the entire country. If a postponement till 1893 is thought probable they will announce that the managers of the Fair will make good use of the additional time. The sentiment in the Senate is almost unanimous in favor of 1893, and if the House does not change the bill will be amended when it reaches that body.

The Virginia Chronicle says explorations on the 1,465 level in the south end of Ophir are now nearing a point where it is known that ore is located, and the announcement of a development is looked for at an early date. STAR OF BETHLEHEM.

A Viennese Astronomer Predicts It Will Shine This Year.

A Vienna astronomer predicts that the Star of Bethlehem, which he asserts has appeared regularly every 315 years since its appearance at the birth of the Savior, will shine with startling brilliancy in the constellation of Ophiopsis for three weeks next December, and then gradually grow dim until it disappears entirely at the expiration of 17 months. The most noted star sharps of modern times say there is no such star as the one above described, but it is much easier to accept the story of the Viennese astronomer than to search for evidence to disprove it.

The ore is shipped to Utah.

A UNCOED COMSTOCKER.

His Novel Experience in the Great Metropolis—Charlie Bender of Reno Represented by a Shrewd Bunco Man—A Cattle Drover and an Old Boy—Slick Detective Work—"G. B." Wants a Guardian—A Story of To-Day—Etc.

The Enterprise says:

A gentleman who asks that his full name be not printed, but who is well known on the Comstock, has written a friend here his novel experience with a gang of bunco sharps in New York city, holding nothing back.

After describing his trip he plunges into his subject.

"About my being easily 'taken in,' I am not always ready to suppose every man I meet is a scoundrel.

"I left Pioche the first week in August, and went to Salt Lake and then to New York. On the Pennsylvania Central I got acquainted with a well-dressed, gentlemanly appearing fellow, who asked me many questions. I believe that this fellow gave me away to his gang. Arriving at New York, we went to a little hotel on Front street. I never saw him more. Monday morning I went to a bank to get a check cashed. When I got near the Astor House on Broadway, a gentlemanly-looking fellow, well dressed, carrying a silk umbrella, stopped up to me and said: 'Hello, B., when the devil did you come to town?'

'You have got the best of me, I don't know you.' 'I guess you do; my name is Bender, from Nevada.' 'What! you from Nevada?'

I know three Benders when I see them—one in Reno, one in Carson and one in Los Angeles, but I don't seem to know you.

'My name is Charlie Bender, and I guess the reason you don't know me, you see, I've been getting shaved, and my hair is cut short, which makes a great difference in a person's appearance. Well, I must tell you, B., since leaving Nevada, I've been in the dry goods business, and I've invested about $50,000 with a partner who understands his business thoroughly, and I am not thick-headed, and I am learning the trade; but I say, B., where are you going?'

'I am looking for the U. S. N. Bank to get a check cashed. We will walk down and talk of old times.' He took of a number of men in Virginia, and I went to know all about them. I attended to my business and got identified, etc., and then we walked until we came to a pawnbroker office on Broom street, when Bender said perhaps this fellow would cash my check for a dollar or two. The owner was not in, and he suggested that I should accompany him where he had a little business to do. From there we went to a restaurant and had dinner, and talked old times again. After dinner he said he wanted a cut-rate ticket to Chicago, and we went to a place that looked like a railroad office, with plenty of 'guides' strewed around. A boy told him the agent had just stepped out. We sat down, and in a few minutes an old fellow came in in the guise of a cattle dealer. He wanted two tickets—one for his nigger and one for himself. He asked us if we lived in the city, and said he had brought $25,000 worth of cattle from Missouri, but he hadn't made anything on them, adding, 'These tarnation Yankees have paid me off in small bills of fifties and twenties,' and he showed me the bills. I said, 'Why don't you get a check on a bank?'

'Check? What's a check?' he asked. I said, 'You don't mean to tell me you don't know what a check is, and that you are in the cattle business?'

'Excuse me,' he said; 'I was raised on a farm in Missouri, and I never learned to read or write; but if you are so tarnation smart, tell me what a check is.' Bender said 'Show him that check of yours,' and I showed him the check. He said, 'If you can prove to me that you can get money on that piece of paper, I'll give each of you $100, because I want to take a piece of that paper like that to St. Jo., and get my $25,000 cashed on it.' 'All right,' said Bender, 'we'll soon show you.' 'You are strangers to me,' said the cattle man, 'but here is $60 to bind the bargain.' Just then the ticket agent came in. The cattleman then howled for tickets for his nigger and himself, and he put the $60 bill in an envelope for us if we proved what he wanted, and we went off to get the check cashed, which we did at $1 50 discount, and then we came back to show the cattleman the money. Bender said: 'Just show him the money to see if it is good,' and I let Charlie unfold the bills and show them to the cattleman. 'I reckon that's good money,' said the cattleman, 'but let me tell you what happened me in the town. I know you will lark at me but I can't help it, for I come from Missouri, and I'm not up to the tarnation Yankee tricks. I was down town and I saw a fellow shuffling some cards, and he bet $100 no one could pick out a certain card, and some fellow bet and he won the $100. So I bet him $200 I could pick it out, and darned if I didn't lose, and I got away from there as quick as I could. Then he took out three cards and wanted to show Bender and I how it was done. I said: 'You tear them up, and don't take them to Missouri and have your friends laugh at you for being caught in such a way.' Oh, you think you're very smart,' he said, 'but I'll bet either of you that you can't pick it out.' 'I don't want to try,' I said, 'Throw them in the fire.' Bender took one of the cards and turned it up, but he didn't bet, for I told him not to, but the cattleman swore he did. I said: 'You are a liar, and if he did, he can't pay with my money (for Bender still held my money in his hands). Bender called for the police, and got into a scuffle with the cattleman, and both edged toward the door and got there, while the pretended ticket agent rushed in and secured me, and sent the boy for the police, and accused Bender and I of trying to rob the cattleman. I said to him, 'You are a liar, and I believe you are in the game.' We then went on the street, and he excused himself, saying his wife was very sick, and he gave me a fictitious name and address and left me.

I have lived in New York many years of my life, but that was the smartest trick ever played on me.

"I then sought the police, and after going through the circumlocution office, detective Hotelling went to work on the case. He said it was a tough case, but he would work on it as for his father.

"He appointed to meet me at the B. & O. R. office at exactly a certain hour, and I was not to leave until I saw him. I obeyed his directions, and when within a block of the place a man held out an open envelope for me to take. I was about to throw it away, thinking it was a advertisement, but I opened it and there were two $50 gold notes in it. I met the detective at the right place, and he said: 'Come back to-morrow at 2 o'clock, and if anyone offers you anything, take it, but don't say a word.' So the next day I was on hand, and I met the same fellow, and he gave me another envelope, and then I met the detective and we went into a saloon, 'smiled,' opened the envelope and found $300 in it, making up all my losses except $30. The detective would take nothing for his work, merely saying he hoped it would serve me a life-long lesson. He doubtless 'warned' this money out of the bunco men under my promise to say nothing.

"I subsequently visited the 'Regues Gallery' in New York and I picked out the office boy, the cattleman, the ticket agent and Mr. Bender.

"Now, don't you think I need a guardian?"

"If Dan de Quille will pay $50 or $100 for this story, divy with me, but don't let him put in the full name, only G. I. B.

RENO

Has no equal in Nevada or California for salubrity of climate, wealth of soil, diversity of products and stability. Situated in the very heart of the celebrated Truckee Meadows the future of Reno is assured. Reno is the City of Homes. There is not a house to rent in Reno. New buildings are occupied as fast as erected. Reno has advantages which no other town can equal. The climate is mild and genial in Winter, and even and healthful in Summer. There are no excessively heated or severely cold terms, and while the days may be warm in Summer the nights are deliciously cool; in Winter sleigh-riding is the exception and not the rule.

Facilities for irrigating surpass any in the State and there is no failure of crops. Reno has Churches of all denominations, Bishop Whitaker's School for Girls, Mt. St. Mary's Academy, the State University, and splendid Public Schools.

The Reno Water Co. furnishes ample pure, cold water for all purposes. The Reno Electric Light Co.'s electric light system, already well established, is being augmented. The Reno Gas Co. supplies gas for all purposes. The streets of Reno are lighted by electricity.

You are required to appear in an action commenced against you as defendant by Maria Alberti, as plaintiff, in the District Court of the State of Nevada, in and for the County of Washoe, and answer the complaint therein within ten days after the service on you of this summons—exclusive of the day of service—if served in said county, or twenty days if served out of said county, but within said district, and in all other cases forty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint. And you are further notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, the said plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded.
